

Free Employee Financial Wellness for COVID-19

Dear Employer,

During challenging times such as these, making healthy financial decisions is of the utmost importance, which is why we at Enrich are here to lend a hand. Our team would like to help your employees by giving them a place where they can get answers to financial related issues that may be arising at this time. We are offering a sample of resources on our financial wellness platform for free that your employees can access immediately. Each resource has been selected based on specific challenges employees may be facing during the COVID-19 pandemic. This is a time where we need to work together and we hope that these resources will help relieve employee stress and keep them on track towards financial success.
